Hi James,

I got a call from a citizen in Dallas late yesterday about discharge of sediment into Little Pumpkinvine Creek and I finally got a chance to call back a moment ago. I received a sample of the pictures (one attached) and I was told all sorts of things washed into the creek, e.g., sediment, pine straw, sheets of sod. I'm thrilled you were able to get out there promptly.

The citizen also said they saw you on Lullwater Court near the start of the subdivision, but wasn't sure if you made it to the end of Lullwater Lane where the discharge goes into the creek. They also said the builder filled in jurisdictional wetlands. Any thoughts on the environmental conditions out there? It sounds like a bit of a mess. If you need any assistance, feel free to call.
